

Copyright and Fair Use

As a student enrolled in this course, please be advised that many of the images presented may be protected by copyright.

United States law permits limited use of copyrighted materials for educational and non-profit purposes under the established doctrine of "Fair Use," along with other relevant provisions of copyright law. The images utilized on my "Academic Web Site" or through Blackboard are intended solely for your educational benefit and to enhance your academic progress, ultimately contributing to societal advancement.

To ensure strict compliance with copyright law, access to the resources on my Academic Website is restricted exclusively to students currently enrolled in my classes. Students are prohibited from sharing visual or audiovisual materials or links outside of their enrolled classes, both during the course duration and after its conclusion. This approach helps us remain within legal boundaries and fulfills the purpose for which these resources were intended: Your Educational Advancement.

By accessing the visual and audiovisual materials on this site, you agree not to share links or resources outside of this class.